

December 1st 2008.

Dear Customer,

We wish to advise you that from January 1st 2009 we will be changing our name from AGB Scientific to VWR International Limited.

In addition, we have also integrated Jencons Ireland into VWR International Limited.

Our strategy and vision for the future is for VWR remains the same i.e. to be the supplier of choice for Research, Laboratory and Production Products and associated services.

The name change represents the final step in the Jencons and AGB integration process. Our new operating systems, owners, products and services have already been integrated effectively. Being part of VWR allows us to increase our product and service portfolio dramatically and offer you an even more competitive offering. We remain committed to our customers and continue to operate from our state of the art facility in Dublin with over one hundred people ready to assist you.

Our contact details remain constant, however, please update your records to include the name change:
